These six extraordinary nofes are never assumed aa fundamental notes of chords. 30. We perceive by the construction of a common chord that it consists of the following concords, viz.: --A major third, minor third, and perfect fifth. 31. In a major common chord, the major third is formed by the fundamental note and its third, and the minor third by the third and fifth. In the minor common chord these intervals are reversed. Moreover we see these chords take their names, major and minor, from the names of their thirds. 32. It has been already observed that the octave note to the fundamental may be added; indeed,...
